GREER, S.C./EWorldWire/Dec. 1, 2006 --- In his latest book, Ending the AIDS Myth, bestselling author Andreas Moritz offers not only a radically different perspective of what AIDS is, but also how to heal its true causes.

Despite common belief, there is no scientific evidence to this day that AIDS is a contagious disease. The current AIDS theory falls short in predicting the kind of AIDS disease an infected person may be manifesting, and there is no accurate system to determine how long it will take for the disease to develop. In addition, the current HIV/AIDS theory contains no reliable information that can help identify those who are at risk of developing AIDS.

On the other hand, published research actually proves that HIV rarely spreads heterosexually and cannot be responsible for an epidemic that involves millions of AIDS victims around the world. Furthermore, it is an established fact that the human retrovirus HIV, which is composed of human gene fragments, is incapable of destroying human cells. Yet cell destruction is the main characteristic of every AIDS disease.

Even, Luc Montagnier, who is the first scientist who discovered HIV, no longer believes that HIV is solely responsible for causing AIDS. In fact, Montagnier showed that HIV alone could not cause AIDS. There is increasing evidence that AIDS may be a toxemia syndrome or a metabolic disorder that is caused by immunity risk factors, including heroin, sex drugs, antibiotics, commonly prescribed AIDS drugs, rectal intercourse, starvation, malnutrition, contaminated water, and chronic dehydration. The last four factors are most prevalent in developing countries where millions of individuals suffer from a major breakdown of cells, resulting in various types of retrovirus fragments, such as HIV-1, HIV-2, HIV-3, etc.

The commonly used AIDS tests, ELISA, WESTERN BLOT, and viral load detection, have been shown to produce a minimum false-positive rate of 95 percent. Most HIV tests are antibody tests, which means that they can cross-react with normal proteins in human blood. Both the ELISA and WESTERN BLOT tests react to proteins that are shared by all other retroviruses found to live in the human body. P24 is one of them. Considering the large number of retroviruses existing in the body, if a patient has produced antibodies to P24, which is generally accepted as proof for the presence of HIV, the chances that he is actually infected with HIV are very slim. In fact, there are nearly 70 commonly occurring conditions "all listed in the medical literature" that are known to make the tests come up positive. These include yeast infections, simple head or chest colds, influenza, rheumatoid arthritis, hepatitis, herpes, recent inoculations, drug use, wasting disease, numerous terminal illnesses, and pregnancy.

There are literally hundreds of millions of people in the world who either have gone through such conditions or are currently experiencing them. Giving them an AIDS test would automatically sentence them to a disease they may not have. If the true positive rates of these HIV tests, instead of their extreme failure rates, were applied to the alleged 40 million HIV infected population in the world, we would have a mere total of 224,719 people infected with HIV. This figure may, in fact, be even much lower. The only reason the number of HIV victims is increasing worldwide is because more and more people who are sick or otherwise immune-depleted are tested for HIV. Routine HIV testing will make AIDS a permanent reality, albeit a false one.

Dozens of prominent scientists working at the forefront of the AIDS research are now openly questioning the virus hypothesis of AIDS.
